AMERICA'S MOST BEAUTIFUL CONCERT HALL

Regarded by many music-lovers as one of the world's most beautiful concert halls of The Cleveland Orchestra. The building is named for John L. Severance and built for its construction. Elisabeth died unexpectedly early in the design process, and toward the building in her memory. The building's architectural significance has preservation societies, including the Cleveland Landmarks Commission and the Severance Hall is a recipient of the Honor Award by the National Trust for Historic Preservation.

A $36-million restoration and expansion of Severance Hall was completed in January 2008. The project was undertaken to restore the hall's original detailing, expand its patron amenities, acoustics, and to update its performance and support spaces to once again provide the highest goal of the project, designed by David M. Schwarz Architectural Services. The project restores Severance Hall's acclaimed beauty and architectural integrity.

Severance Hall serves as the home of The Cleveland Orchestra for concerts, and is also rented by a variety of local organizations and private citizens for performances, information on renting Severance Hall.
